Picture Yourself In The Film Industry

(NAPSA)—Nearly 2 million people work in the film industry, reports the Motion Picture Association of America. If you would like to be among them, a weekend workshop could help make your dreams come true.

That's because the Savannah College of Art and Design (SCAD) offers a Motion Picture Boot Camp for film production crew positions. It will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Dec. 19 and 20 at the SCAD Atlanta Digital Media Center. It's open to anyone 18 years of age and older. SCAD was the first to offer these specialized workshops to fill the growing need for skilled professionals behind the scenes on film and television sets.

The Workshop

Under the supervision of professional instructors, participants will learn the responsibilities of crew positions and departments, understand set protocol, utilize appropriate paperwork, acquire film production vocabulary, get hands-on training with industry-standard film equipment, and put their knowledge into practice.

Industry professionals who are active in their respective fields will lead the program. There are four workshops to choose from: electric, camera, office production assistant and set production assistant. The cost for the electrical or camera team workshops is $200. The production assistant class is $150.

The Results

Upon successful completion of each class, the participants will be prepared to demonstrate their film crew skills, identify and handle appropriate film gear, use proper production terminology and paperwork, and apply to crew positions on film sets.
