

INGENIOUS IDEAS

DEPARTMENT

Simply Uncanny

(NAPS)—Almost everyone loves the sweet, succulent taste of creamed corn. Until recently, however, busy cooks have had only two choices in serving this popular, savory side dish: Make it from scratch, or buy canned. Home economists at McKenzie's Southern Vegetables Test Kitchens have come up with a rich, flavorful solution—a trio of frozen corn products that successfully unite homemade taste and convenience!

All three varieties—Creamed Corn, White Creamed Corn, and Corn with Butter Sauce—are now available in your local grocer's freezer.

Packaged to look like an ear of corn, the unique tube shaped products lock in homemade freshness and take up less space in your freezer. Unlike canned, these frozen varieties have no watery runoff; your family will come back for seconds...the ultimate compliment for any cook!

It's delicious when served alone, but you can also be creative when using Creamed Corn and Corn with Butter Sauce. Here are just a few ideas to reinvigorate a side dish at your next meal:

- Add Corn with Butter Sauce to mashed potatoes or green beans

New varieties of frozen creamed corn bring authentic, homemade taste and convenience to this popular side dish.

for a new twist on a tried and true side dish.

- Mix together White and Golden Creamed Corn for a splash of color on your dinner table.

- Add thinly sliced scallions, a dash of tarragon, and salt and pepper (to taste) to give your creamed corn a slightly different flavor.

For more information on these and other McKenzie's frozen vegetables, log on to www.agrilinkfoods.com/mckenzie.